

Mori Ottoman Fund

Fund Objective

The Fund seeks long-term capital appreciation through investment primarily in a portfolio of Emerging European securities. The Fund may also invest opportunistically Middle East and North Africa region securities from time to time. The Fund manager specialises in investment in Emerging Europe and uses a bottom-up approach that incorporates both stock and sector views. The stock-picking style uses proprietary valuation models, target prices, stock market capitalisation, liquidity and view on management's quality.

Mori Ottoman Fund

Performance

Risk assets rallied in June with more accommodative statements coming from the US Fed about potential interest rate cut(s) and the G20 Summit held in Osaka, Japan, toward the end of the month. Oil prices corrected in early June but recovered later following news reports that OPEC and Russia extended their agreement on production figures into 2020. The Hungarian index closed the month 1% lower in euro terms, while all the other Emerging European indices were up for the month. The net asset value of Mori Ottoman Fund increased by 5.3% in euro terms (C share class) in June, while the MSCI Emerging Europe 10/40 Index was up 5.1% on the month.

Portfolio Activity

Gazprom stock continued its rally in June as more investors and analysts incorporated the new dividend stream into their models. We feel the stock price was supported further by a number of funds that were underweight and/or short in the name. We top sliced Gazprom as our exposure neared the maximum 10% threshold allowed under UCITS. After revisiting our view for the Russian utilities sector and updating our models we bought into Inter RAO Ues, which we believe trades at a steep discount to our estimated fair value.

In Turkey, our equity portfolio remained unchanged. However, we reduced the market/index hedges as the long-awaited Trump-Erdogan meeting at the G20 Summit was friendly. President Trump further stated that Turkey was not treated fairly by the previous Obama administration when it wanted to purchase the US Patriot missile defence system. Thus, Turkey had to look at alternatives and hence went for the Russian S400 missile defence system. Delivery of S400's is expected to start in July and the markets expect that potential sanctions from the US may be limited to defence related companies/entities in Turkey. On the macroeconomic front, the last monthly inflation figure came in lower than expected primarily due to a decline in food prices. Current account deficit also shrank to almost zero in light of the latest official figures. Both bode well for interest rate cuts in the second half of 2019.

We locked in some profits in PKO Bank in Poland as the stock price rebounded nicely following the sell-off in the previous month. We think that the trading range in Polish banks will continue until there is a concrete resolution of the foreign exchange denominated mortgage bill and the future of banking and insurance taxes.

The Slovenian government decided to sell the last remaining 10% stake in Nova Ljubljanska Banka (NLB) through an accelerated book building in which we participated.

It was announced that more than 90% of the shareholders of Oriflame accepted the tender offer at SEK 227. Thus, we tendered our shares after initiating a position in the name only a few months earlier.

Outlook

The rhetoric from the G-20 Summit was more positive than generally expected, which gave a push for assets prices in general in the short term. As we are entering the traditionally slow summer months, we think the markets will likely consolidate following a strong month.
